

Doing Business on the Gulf Coast – The WorkSource: A Study in Success

The U.S. Department of Labor’s National Business Learning Partnership has published a written case study, Doing Business on the Gulf Coast – The WorkSource: A Study in Success. The study is being used as a tool to show other workforce boards around the county how to successfully plan, develop and implement a work plan that accelerates transition of their organizations into demand-driven, employer-focused systems.

The study takes a look at what makes The WorkSource–Gulf Coast Workforce Board successful. It discusses the Board’s vision, strategic plan, innovative business services model and the Health Services Industry Initiative. It also shows how effective marketing of its system has brought awareness of The WorkSource system to residents and employers in Houston and the 13-county Gulf Coast region.

A report based on the study will be available soon.
